The HUMANIST
ASSOCIATION of CONNECTICUT

Presents

Rev. Dr. Robert Rafford

Celebrating

William Lloyd Garrison

William Lloyd Garrison was probably the most effective reformer of the 19th century, having more to do with ending slavery and achieving equal rights for women than anyone else of that century. Did he eventually become a humanist? Can we count him among our humanist fore-bearers?

A founding member of the Humanist Association of Connecticut, Rev. Dr. Robert Rafford is a semi-retired Unitarian Universalist minister, officiating at weddings, funerals and other events. He is a professional genealogist and the president of the Middlebury Historical Society and is Municipal Historian for the town of Middlebury. He was converted to humanism at the 1979 Unitarian Universalist Association General Assembly.
